ump, a party of gentlemen incher column, a party of gentlemen in-presed in the Tuscarawas Valley railroad present in the ruscarawas valley railroad are on a visit to the city. Iney arrived al Bridgeport shortly after noon yesterday, and spent the remainder of the day in ricing various points of interest connect of with the business of the road on both iles of the river. They first inspected he terminal facilities of the road at Wes Wheeling, and afterwards drove up the into Enaville and Martin's Ferry address thence, crossing over the ferry green other leading manufacturing estab ments, winding up at the McLure House for dinner at six o'clock in the region. They will start on their reedock this morning, and go as far as Backriver harbor, twenty-five miles west Cleveland, on Lake Erie. Their ride both ways will give them a pretty good ide of the country through which the read passes and of the natural expectations of the line for business at all points, in-

In short, the road and equipments as is In short, the road and equipments as as generally the case with enterprises of the kind, cost considerably more than the es-timates, while the available stock sub-scriptions, as is likewise often the case, proved to be very considerably less than scriptions, as is likewise often the case, proved to be very considerably less than estimated.

These combined causes, to which may be added the largely increased expenses rendered unavoidable by the unusually open and wet winter, have co-sperated to render necessary, and, indeed, unavoidable this floating debt.

This indebtedness, however, slubough agregating a considerable sum of money, is not large, when the present value of the property of the company is considered.

The total cost, as shown by the statement, having been, in round numbers, $450,000, while the same property would cost to-day at present prices for iron, material and labor, not less than $600,000. Your road, then, when entirely completed and equipped, will, according to these figures, be worth $150,000 more than it cost.

About the first of February last, the assets and liabilities were estimated as nearly as the then coudition of the work would admit of, and submitted to the Board of Directors, at a meeting called for that purpose, on February 12.

After a careful consideration of the question as to how to provide for the floating debt of the Company, at as carry a day as possible, a resolution was passed, the Company, are now ready for the market and ought to meet with a ready sale to the stockholders of the Company. That they are perfectly safe, and will ultimately prove a profitable investment, there can, in my opinion, be no doubt.

The earnings of the road during the past four months, though a season of the year the most unfavorable for travel and traffic, have been such as to demonstrate beyond end any reasonable doubt, that with such increase of business as is already forshadowed and rendered certain, during the coming year, the revenues will be sufficient to pay operating expenses and more than provide the interest on the first mortigate bonds. The earnings amount now in gross to about $90 per day, and it is perfectly safe to estimate that these earnings will be increased on an average of at least 50 per cent when the summer business opens up, and the road is put in condition to handle with dispatch all the traffic that can be controlled by it. This would be ample to keep the road in repair, pay all operating expenses, and provide interest on the entire debt, making the second mortgage bonds worth their face.

Taking the history and experience of other local roads during their first years of existence as a guide for our estimates of increased business, we may very safely conclude that the business of the second and future years will at least double that of the first on your road.

It is likely that no plan of counting th electoral vote satisfactory to both parties can be settled upon this session. A car consider the matter yesterday, and the Nar says the caucus was so much afraid o nocratic Senators before attempting be in favor of the proposition recently adopted by the Democratic members of the committee on rules and the special con nittee on the electoral count in joint see ion. This was that in cases where ingle return cames and the cases where mittee on the electoral count in joint session. This was that in cases where a single return comes up from a State it shall be counted unless both houses by concurrent action object to it, and where there are dual returns only that shall be counted to which both houses agree. That is, where there are two or more returns from a State, neither of them can be counted if either House objects to it. Some of the Senators were in favor of letting the matter stand as it is, as any attempt to legislate will cause a long discussion. It is probable that another caucus will be held soon, and if anything is adopted it will be a rule framed upon the basis of the provisions named. The Republicans will undoubtedly oppose such a rule, as it would not in the least restrict the Democratic power over the count, the latter having both houses of Congress. The salest prediction to make is that no legislation to regulate the count.

and there are not a few who, looking back in after days at the money they have so aimlessly squandered, regret that with the opportunities they have had they should have failed to make some provision for their declining years. It is in this that the virtue of thrift consists, and it is quite compatable with entire freedom from the charge of meanness or atinginess: the the last being a defect of character which is rare with us, though not uncommon among continental people, is whom thrift sometimes degenerates into miserliness.
